BABYLIST TIP: Some registries let you add a note to each item—use it! Most people prefer buying the fun items over the practical, but you really need those practical items! Does anyone really want to buy you a humidifier? Probably not, but try adding a note like, “This will be a huge help if Junior gets a cold, and we’ve even heard that it helps babies sleep better.” Now your friend is able to get you the gift of sleep, which is priceless! BabyList has found that an item with a note is 50% more likely to be purchased off the registry than an item with no note.

BABYLIST TIP: Have items at different price points on your registry. Try to include some "gifty" items that cost less than $15 (like board books, bubble bath, baby hats, cute onesies, bath-time toys). Also ask for the big things you need so a generous relative doesn't end up getting you 20 different small things.
